

TELEVISION

Television is a means of education and entertainment. In the same way, it is a means of escape because it appeals particularly to the tired and to the bored. Television has changed the habits of its viewers. They read less, go to bed later and the members of the family hardly communicate with each other when they are watching their favourite programme. Similarly, television is a waste of time especially for young students. Instead of reading a book or doing their homework, they spend their time watching all sorts of programmes.

However, television has a lot of advantages. It broadens the minds of people through the serious discussions it broadcasts. In the same way, it helps people relax and keep their stress to the minimum. Besides, television keeps its viewers informed on what's happening in the world. Thus, the world is brought into our home thanks to the magic box.

... However, we find ourselves obliged to acknowledge that TV is after all a part of our life. However, we should rationalize the use of it by selecting the good programmes that would enhance our knowledge and not ruin our minds.

FAHIM, Med

3rd year Eng.